With the recent launch of its Whole Blood Program, the Thornton Fire Department became one of the first agencies in the north metro area to carry and administer whole blood in the field as part of emergency medical response efforts.

Through a collaboration with HCA HealthONE Mountain Ridge, firefighters and paramedics will now be able to provide whole blood transfusions to critically injured patients before they arrive at the hospital. This advanced level of prehospital care is designed to improve survival rates for patients experiencing severe blood loss caused by traumatic injuries, vehicle crashes, shootings, and other life-threatening emergencies.

"Every minute matters during a major trauma event," said EMS Assistant Chief Gonzales. "By carrying whole blood on our emergency apparatus, our crews can begin life-saving treatment immediately, giving patients the best possible chance of survival before reaching definitive care."

Whole blood contains red blood cells, plasma, and platelets in a single product, making it one of the most effective treatments for hemorrhagic shock. Traditionally, blood transfusions have only been available after arrival at a hospital. With this program, the Thornton Fire Department can now bring that care directly to the patient.

The program was made possible through collaboration with HCA HealthONE Mountain Ridge, whose support and medical oversight help ensure the safe storage, handling, and replacement of blood products.

"This collaboration represents our shared commitment to advancing patient care in our community," said Ryan Thornton, President and CEO of HCA HealthONE Mountain Ridge. "When patients are experiencing the most severe emergencies, providing whole blood before they arrive at the hospital can make a critical difference in their outcomes. Because whole blood more closely mimics the body's natural response to blood loss, this program gives first responders another important tool to help care for patients when every minute matters."

Startup costs for the program primarily included specialized equipment, supplies, and training. Because Thornton firefighters and paramedics already participate in regular advanced medical training, the program was integrated into existing continuing education efforts.

The Thornton Fire Department responds to nearly 18,000 calls annually and continues to invest in progressive emergency medical services that enhance patient care and improve outcomes for the community.

What drivers should know about Thornton's new photo enforcement program

Information provided by the Thornton Police Department

Thornton recently launched a new photo enforcement program, and residents may have questions about how it works and when citations are issued. Here are answers to some of the most common questions received by the Thornton Police Department (PD) :

- Speeding citations are reviewed and issued based on posted speed limits. Lower-level violations may result in a warning rather than a citation.
- Drivers must stop behind the stop line when the light turns red, or you may receive a citation.

Every potential violation is reviewed by Thornton PD staff to help ensure citations are issued appropriately. For more information, visit ThorntonPD.org.

Soak Up the Savings with Thornton's Water Rebates and Services

Information provided by Thorntonwater.com

As summer winds down and the need for outdoor watering decreases, Thornton Water reminds customers that fall is the perfect time to increase efficiency at your property. Check for leaks and take advantage of the rebates and services offered by the city to save water and money.

Checking for and fixing leaks in your irrigation system, toilets and indoor plumbing is one of the easiest ways to improve water efficiency. Finding hidden leaks early not only helps prevent costly repairs, but also saves money and conserves water, our most precious resource.

To see if you have a water leak, sign up for the WaterSmart water usage portal at bit.ly/WaterSmartProgram and log in using your 13-digit City of Thornton utility account number and ZIP code. WaterSmart helps you track your water use, manage monthly usage and receive leak alerts so you can find and fix leaks before they drain your wallet.

Fall is also a great time to tackle a water efficiency project and earn a rebate. Thornton offers water efficiency rebates and services for residential, commercial and HOA customers. From toilet and irrigation controller rebates to sprinkler consultations, commercial water use assessments and free water conservation kits, there are programs to help you save water.

If you're thinking about converting your lawn next year, fall is a great time to start planning. Explore water-saving landscape programs and resources, including the free H2Overhaul Kit, to make water-wise landscaping a little easier. Visit ThorntonWater.com/Rebates to learn more and start planning your next water-saving project today.

Anythink Nature Library Opens, Connecting Community with Nature

Information provided by anythinklibraries.org

A new chapter in outdoor learning has begun with the opening of the Anythink Nature Library at Aylor Open Lands, giving Thornton residents a place to explore, discover and connect with nature. Located at 136th Avenue and Quebec Street, the 33,000-square-foot library sits on 15 acres leased by the City of Thornton to Anythink in 2022. The surrounding 140 acres of Aylor Open Lands will remain dedicated to nature learning and exploration, with trails and outdoor experiences designed to encourage visitors of all ages to spend more time outside.

The Nature Library blends traditional library services with hands-on opportunities to learn about wildlife, water, stars and the changing seasons. The facility was designed to serve as a natural extension of the open lands, inspiring curiosity while helping build a culture of environmental stewardship.

The project reflects priorities identified by residents across the community. Thornton's 2023 Resident Survey found that expanding running, walking and biking trails, preserving natural open spaces, and investing in parks are among residents' top recreation priorities. Countywide surveys also show strong support for protecting open space and providing greater access to nature.

According to Anythinklibraries.org, "the final design features space like a sunroom, immersive dark room, indoor and outdoor arts and sciences lab, as well as multiple gardens, a mud pit and an outdoor walking path; all created to entice visitors to follow the path to the next space." With its combination of indoor learning spaces and outdoor exploration, the Anythink Nature Library offers a new destination where families, students and lifelong learners can experience the benefits of nature while helping preserve it for future generations.
