

Heliototrichon sempervirens Blue Oat Grass

This stunning blue grass looks great when planted in a xeric Mediterranean setting, plant along side sandstone rocks for maximum contrast. The bluish color is intensified when planted in dry, well draining soils. Although foliage is evergreen in warmer climates, some die back will occur during the harsh winters of the Front Range. Cut back in spring to renew growth. Crown rot may occur in moist poor draining soils. Plant in full sun, well draining soil, moderate water. Height 2-3' Spread 1.5-2'

USDA Zones: 4-8
