

Yellow twig Dogwood
Cornus sericea 'Flaviramea'

Height: 6'-8'
Width: 5'-6'
(At Maturity)
Growth Rate: Fast
USDA Zone: 3-7
Bloom: White
Time: May
Sun: Full/partial Water: Medium

The yellow twig shines in the winter garden. The twigs which were growing green in the summer turn a bright clear yellow in fall and are a splash of color through out the winter. During the growing season this shrub is covered with medium to dark green foliage which turn burgundy red in the fall. In spring cluster of white flowers are produced followed by a white fruit.

When pruning these shrubs keep in mind that the newest growth will have the most color. It is best to remove older stems in their entirety . If you prune just the ends of the branches the stem will die back to the next live bud, and then turn black. This can be unsightly