

Compact Oregon Grape Holly
Mahonia aquifolium 'Compacta'

Height: 2'-4'
Width: 3'-5'
(At Maturity)
Growth Rate: Slow
USDA Zone: 5-9
Bloom: Yellow
Time: April/May
Sun: Partial/Shade
Water: Low

This semi-evergreen shrub produces reddish – bronze new growth which compliments its yellow spring flowers. As foliage matures it becomes dark green, and holly like. It will become bronze again in fall. The fruit it produces resemble grapes, thus it's common name.

This shrubs spreads by under ground stems and can be used to create a low growing hedge. It is some what tolerant of alkaline soils though it prefers them to be acidic. Some claim that it will tolerate full sun, but protection from the hot afternoon sun and winter winds are recommended