This is a unique accent tree which has a distinctive golden colored bark and small light green foliage. It produces a yellow pea-like flower in late May. Pea shrub is extremely resilient and is capable of growing in poor soil, and is very drought tolerant.

The weeping habit is strong and stiff. In general you will not notice much difference in height or width for many years. What you will notice is that the canopy will become much fuller. Branches seem to slow in growth as they become closer to the ground.
